Benton Commission Delayed Here

Consul Comes.

c. Carothers, special agent of the state department.

Telegrams to Washington were dispatched, but their contents were not made known here. Members of the investigating commission did not know whether they were to proceed to Chihuahua or not. They have only a slight hope that such a mission would be productive of evidence as to the manner of Benton's death, for belief is general that if the body is not in an advanced state of decomposition it probably has been mutilated by quick lime or some other chemical.

Letcher's irain was held at Juarez, ready for his own use for the return trip and to take the Benton commission if it is determined that this part of the program shall be carried out.

To Keep Findings Secret.

Mr. Letcher says that no findings will be given out at Chihuahua but everything pertaining to the investigation will be reported to the state department at Washington and will be given out there. He says his position as adviser and escort to the commission prevents him making any statement regarding the Benton case. Mr. Letcher says he has not seen the grave of Benton at Chihuahua but was told officially by Villa that it was in the Panteon de is Regla, but that he had not had the grave pointed out to him. Mr. Letcher will remain here until the commission goes to Chihuahua. One Witness Examined.

One Witness Examined.

Americans from Chihushua report that the testimony of one witness has aiready been taken by vice consul Calvert Scobell, of the British comsular service. The witness made a sworn statement before the vice consul in which he said that he had gone to Juarez with Benton on a street car and that Benton made no threats against Villa. On the contrary, he said, the witness is reported to have testified that he was going there only for information about his ranch which had been taken charge of by the rebels, the fences cut and the pastures used for robel stock. Benton was sick the day he went to Juarez, the witness said.

British consul Arthur Charles Perceval, James B. Hambleton, Dr. R. M. Worsham and R. E. Themason constitute the Anglo-American commission which will go to Chinushua to inspect the body of William Benton. Maj. Wilson T. Davidson and Clarence Manly, of the United States army medical corps, will accompany the commission as medical experts in gunshot wounds, American consul Marion Letcher will act as escort for the commission when it goes and British vice consul Capt. Scobell will act in an unofficial capacity at Chihushua to assist the commission.

Major Wilson T. Davidson and major Charence Manly, the two army surgeons who have been appointed by Gen. Hugh I. Scott to make the examination of William Benton's body, have received no more instructions regarding the form the examination will take. They say they are now under orders from the state department representatives and that the examination will follow any suggestions made by this department.

made by this department.

"Otherwise we will follow the method used by all surgeons who have had experience in gunshot wounda," major Manly says. "From the nature of the wounds and from our experience in such cases, we will draw our inferences as to the form of death. The condition of the body will make much difference in the success of such an investigation. The degree of decomposition, the discoloration and other things will govern our methods of examination. All information obtained at the examination will be reported to the state department from which department we are now receiving our orders."

Villa "Thinks" Bauch Dead.

Villa "Thinks" Bauch Dead. Villa "Thinks" Bauch Dead.

Villa has again denied that he knows where Gustav Bauch is. He made another statement Sunday at Chihushua in which he said that Bauch was liberated in Juarez and that, as the man had "many enemies because of his connection with the federals in Coaffulla," he was probably shot by some of these enemies. Villa added that, of course, he could not be held responsible for this fact.

Villa's expression today accessioned

ble for this fact.

Villa's expression today accasioned no surprise here where the German-American's sister, Mrs. J. M. Patterson, and others interested in the case have been realigned to the conclusion that Bauch was slain at Juarex a week ago. Repeated assertions were made by certain Juarez rebels talking confidentially to friends on this side of the border that Bauch was executed.

For a week official juares restant

For a week official Jaures main-tained that Bauch was in Chihushus, but Chihushus declared and Infor-maily proved that Bauch was not there at all.

Patterson asserted that her Mrs. Patterson asserted that her brother had no enemies in the world. He was a locomotive engineer and not of a shrewdness or character which would recommend him to any one desiring to emply a spy, Mrs. Patterson said. His statement before the alleged court martial that he went to Junrez "to get drunk" was accepted by Mrs. Patterson as probably the truth.

Austin, Tex. March 2.—An urgent appeal was received today by the governor for a detachment of rangers at Lyford and other points along the Mexican border. The petition was signed by about 50 residents in that section in which they allege that Mexican bandits are stealing their cattle and committing other acts of depredation and that the people are almost powerless to cope with the situation. These bandits, it is alleged, come in squads from across the Rio Grande and commit thefts and other crimes and then get back on the Mexican side.
